Maya brings a unique and fresh perspective to the world of storytelling workshops. Instead of providing a set of rules and working on one narrative, Maya goes to the root cause of your emotions to change the way you tell any story and do that in a way that suits your personality.

She brings techniques from acting school and her professional career as an actress to help you explore new ways to use your body, voice, and emotions to deliver a powerful message. It's a deep process that shakes you up but opens the door for growth and high performance.

Above all, Maya cares. A lot. She supports and guides you through the process side by side to ensure maximum results.

Don't try any other storytelling workshops (and I have tried many others) before you meet Maya.
